Leading Differentiation in a Secondary Environment

Wednesday 1 November 2017

3.45pm – 5.15pm (sign-in from 3.30pm)

Ballajura Community College, Illawarra Crescent, Ballajura

In order for teachers to be effective differentiators, school leaders need to have a clear understanding of differentiation and what it looks like in practice. They also need to ensure that pedagogical, administrative and logistical barriers to differentiated practice are addressed. During this workshop, school leaders will:

- Increase their understanding of the ways teachers can differentiate process, product, environment and content, with a focus on differentiating content and assessment for varying student abilities
- Identify the tangible evidence of differentiated practice in teaching, programs & assessment, in order to better understand what differentiation looks like in the context of their school/learning area
- Identify barriers to differentiated practice, and explore strategies to remove or manage these; and
- Share strategies and ideas with other participants, in order to explore creative solutions to issues.

This workshop is designed for middle & senior school leaders including principals, deputies, heads of departments and teams, heads of curriculum, and aspiring leaders. Participants are encouraged to examine existing differentiated practice & barriers to implementation before the workshop, and are welcome to bring examples of policy or practice that has been effective in enacting change.
