SIMON BREAKSPEAR

How to create impact despite complexity and resistance

Date: Friday, 16 June

Time: 8:30am – 3:30pm (morning tea and lunch included)

Cost: $300

Venue: Institute for Professional Learning
Department of Education
Building B
164 – 194 Oxford Street
Leederville WA 6007

Changing times call for great leaders who can create progress despite complexity, ambiguity and resistance. Around the world, schools are under pressure to deliver on new and broader outcomes, utilise evidence-based practices and create innovative new learning designs. 'How to create impact despite complexity and resistance' provides a dynamic approach to leading change that will enable you to adapt quickly, continuously learn and iterate towards an effective solution.

You will learn:

- How to adopt an agile mindset to thrive despite uncertainty and complexity
- Creating a bias towards action and using prototyping to accelerate learning
- Building effective teams that can take intelligent risks and innovate
- Harnessing evidence to guide continuous improvement
